To the children of today and the guardians of tomorrow, may you embrace the call to protect our planet.

Meet Lavender, Edmund and Mirabelle

They are best friends.
They all study at the Greenfield
Elementary School.

They are even in the same class! They have a very passionate and dedicated teacher named Mrs. Amy.

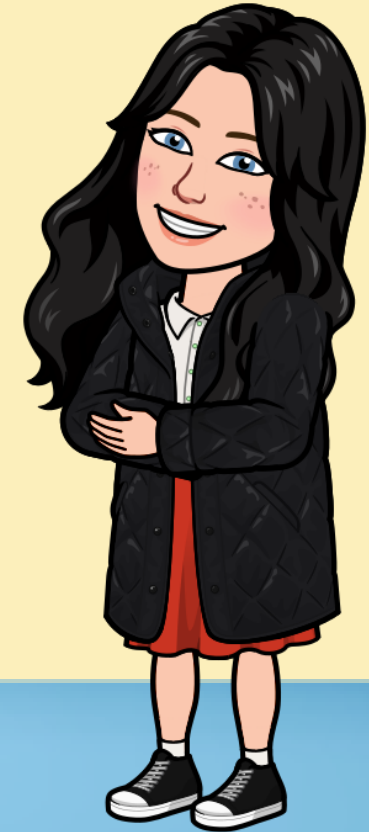

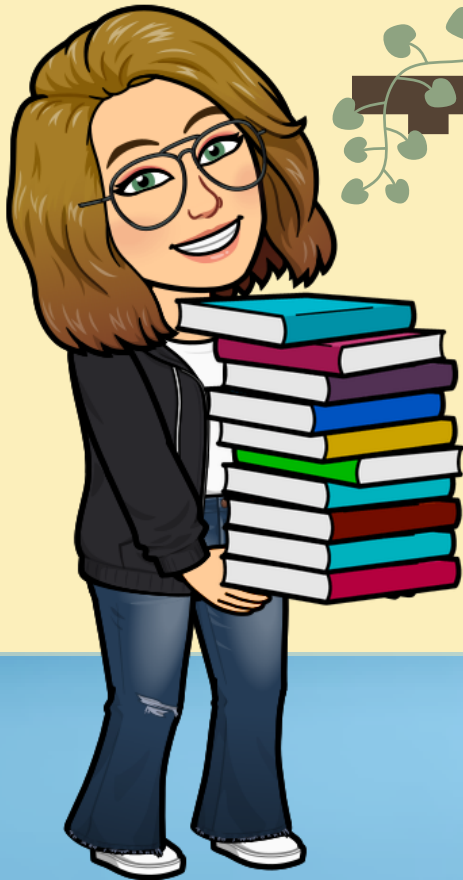

She is their class teacher and she teaches them most of the subjects including Science.

This week, she asked the students to come up with interesting projects for the science fair.

The students form a group and discuss their ideas. Lavender seems to be very excited. Mrs. Amy picks out some books from the library and brings them to help the students research.

"Alright everyone, gather around! Let's review our research for the science fair projects.

Anyone found anything?", asked the teacher.

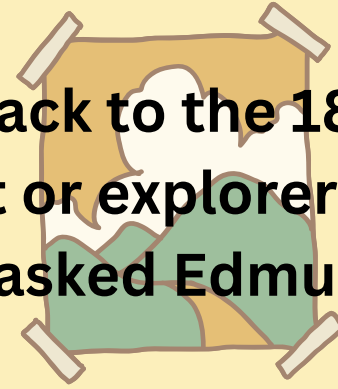

Lavender -I've been waiting to show you what I found! You wouldn't believe it.

"What is it?", asked Mirabelle curiously.

"Look at this! Its some dusty old journal dating back to the 18th century, it probably belonged to some scientist or explorer."
"But..what does it have to do with our project?",asked Edmund

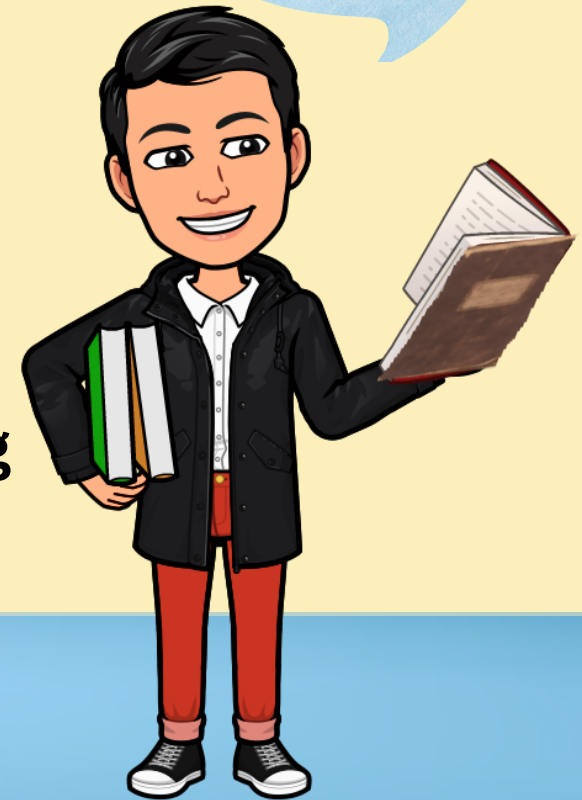

Have a look!

WOAH

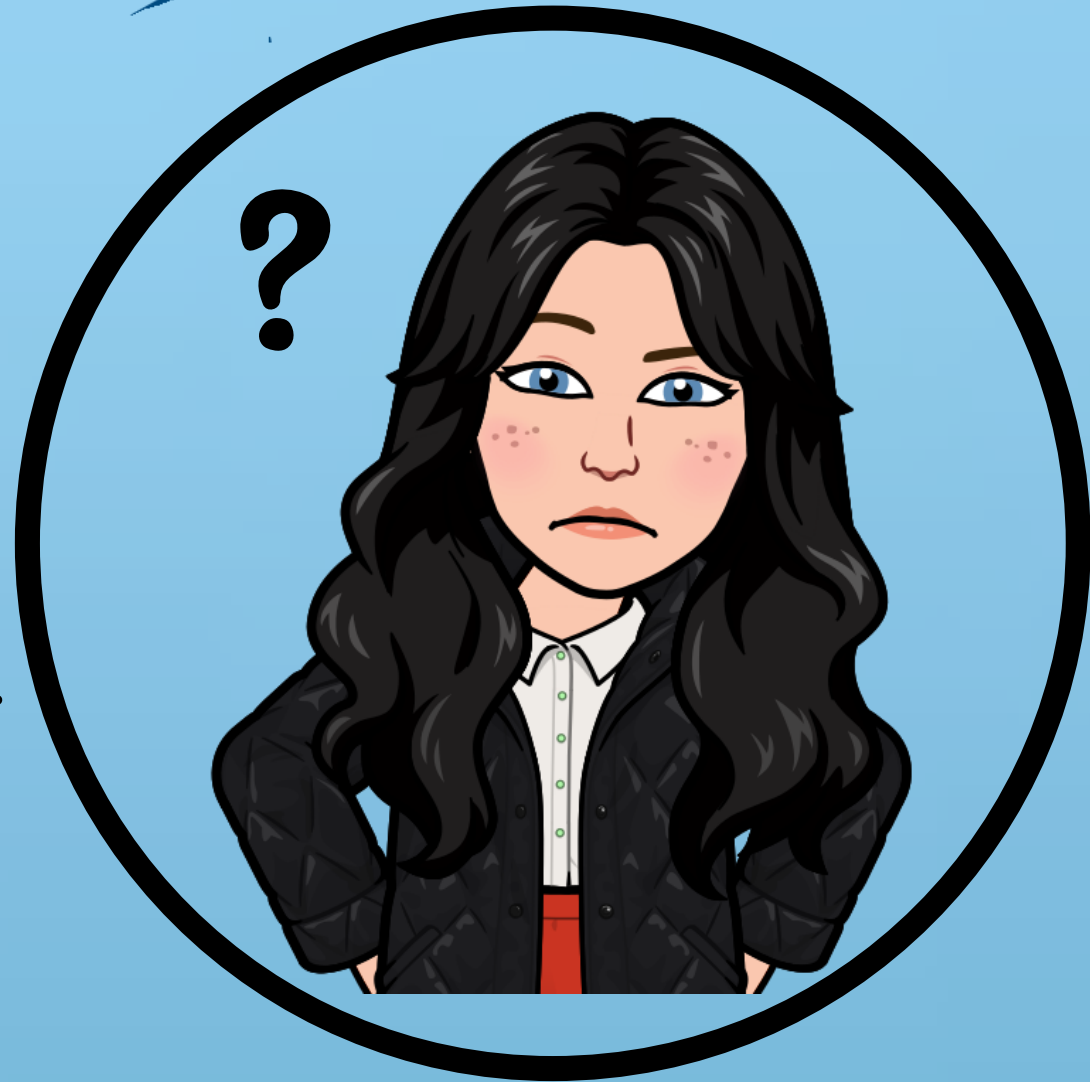

Have a look at it, won't you?
Edmund took the book and started
flipping the pages.
"There's so many entries mentioning
strange things about the climate.",
said Edmund.

"And that's not all! There's some mention about a portal..." ,
he went on.

"A PORTAL!?", exclaimed Mirabelle.

"Those don't exist", she said.

"Well there's only one way to find out ",
said Mrs. Amy

"And that is..?" asked Mirabelle

"Check it out ourselves!!", screamed
Edmund and Lavender

"Yes", agreed Mrs. Amy
"But..how are we ever going to find out where it is.. I mean it could be anywhere in the world!", said
Mirabelle

She did not like the idea of going hunting for some strange portal.

Lavender had everything planned
"Don't worry about that", she said
"The coordinates are mentioned here, Mrs. Amy could help us find it."

There are coordinates!

Lavender gave the book to Mrs. Amy and asked her if she could identify those coordinates.

The students were so excited, they couldn't stop thinking of where the portal would take them.

hehehe

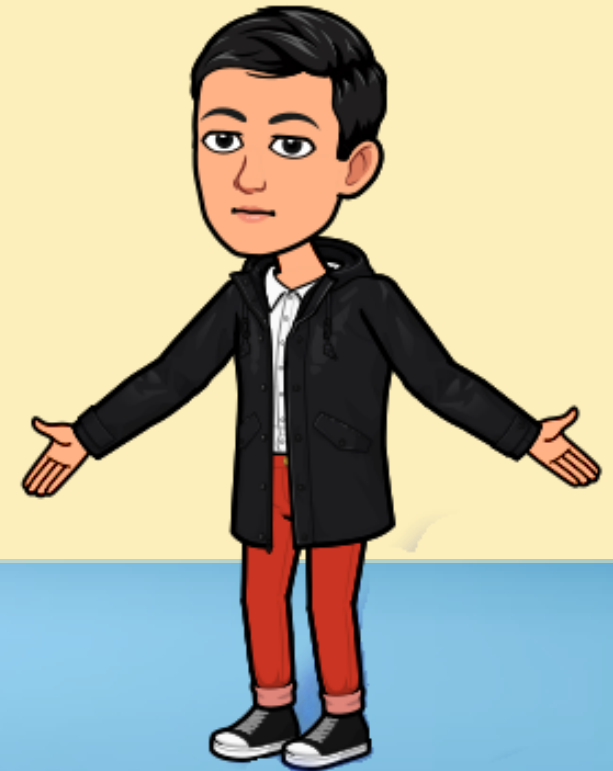

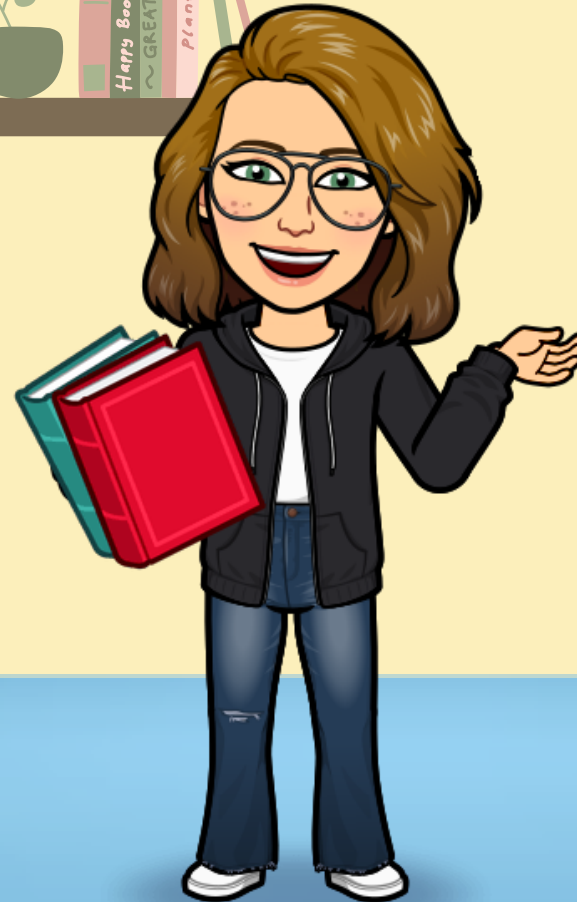

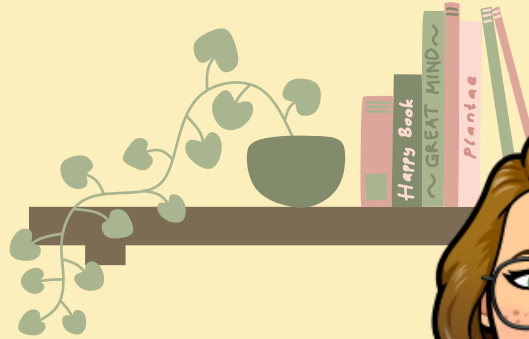

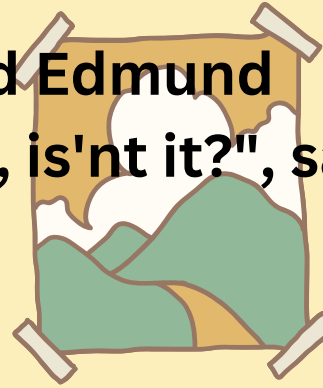

Mrs. Amy returned the book to Lavender and looked at the students in disbelief.

"The portal is located within our school grounds, it's just nearby the staffroom."

"How did nobody ever notice it?", asked Edmund
"Who knows? Life is just full of surprises, isn't it?", said Mrs. Amy smiling

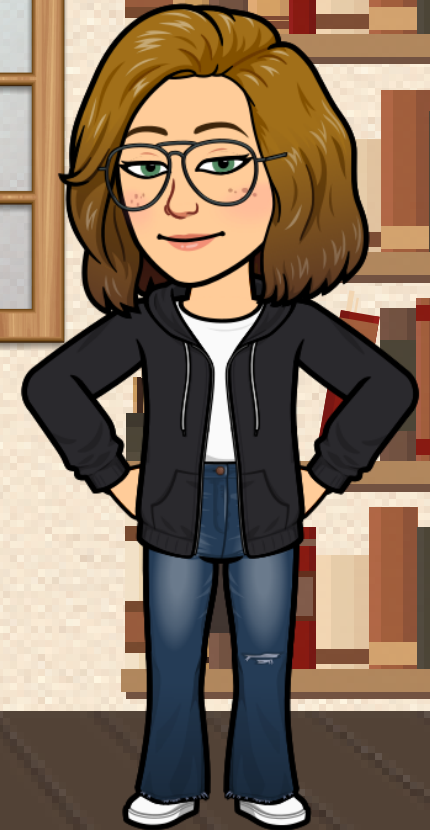

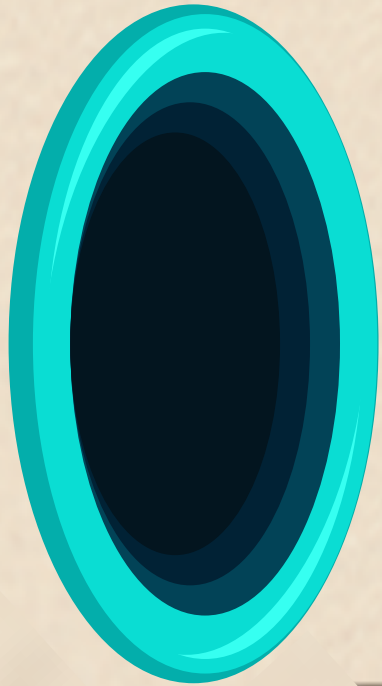

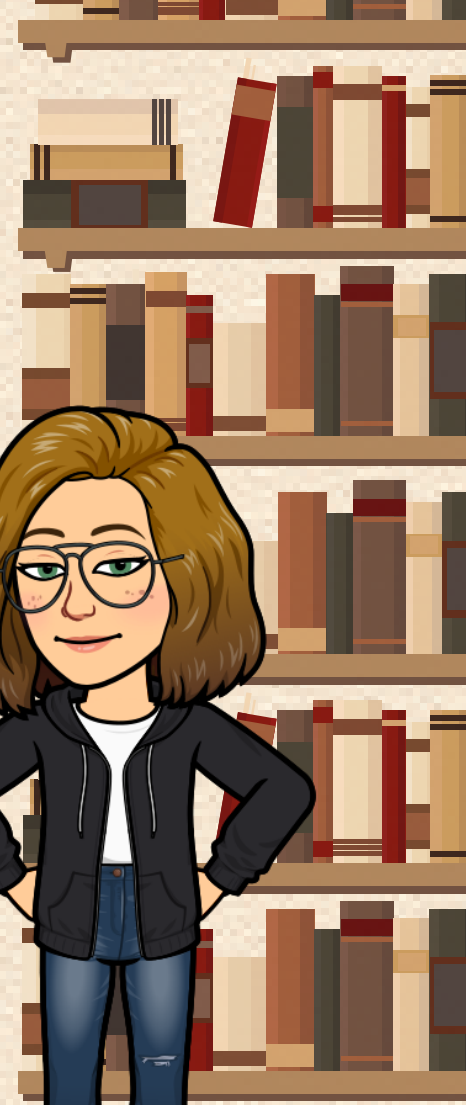

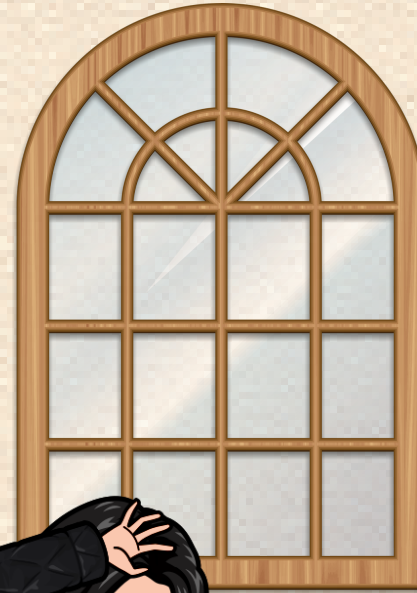

Alright then, off we go!", cheered Lavender. The students walked out of class to find their way to the staffroom.

Mrs. Amy looked at the coordinates once more. Then she called out,
"The portal must be in the store room. That explains why nobody knew about it."

Then, they saw the portal, dark and scary. They couldn't wait to enter. Mirabelle said that she'd prefer to stay behind but her friends dragged her anyway.

It was scorching hot when they entered.
They'd travelled into the future where they were facing the results of their actions.

The earth was destroyed. Trees on fire, animals dying and the temperature increasing every minute. The students didn't want to stay there anymore and they asked Mrs. Amy if she could help them get back.

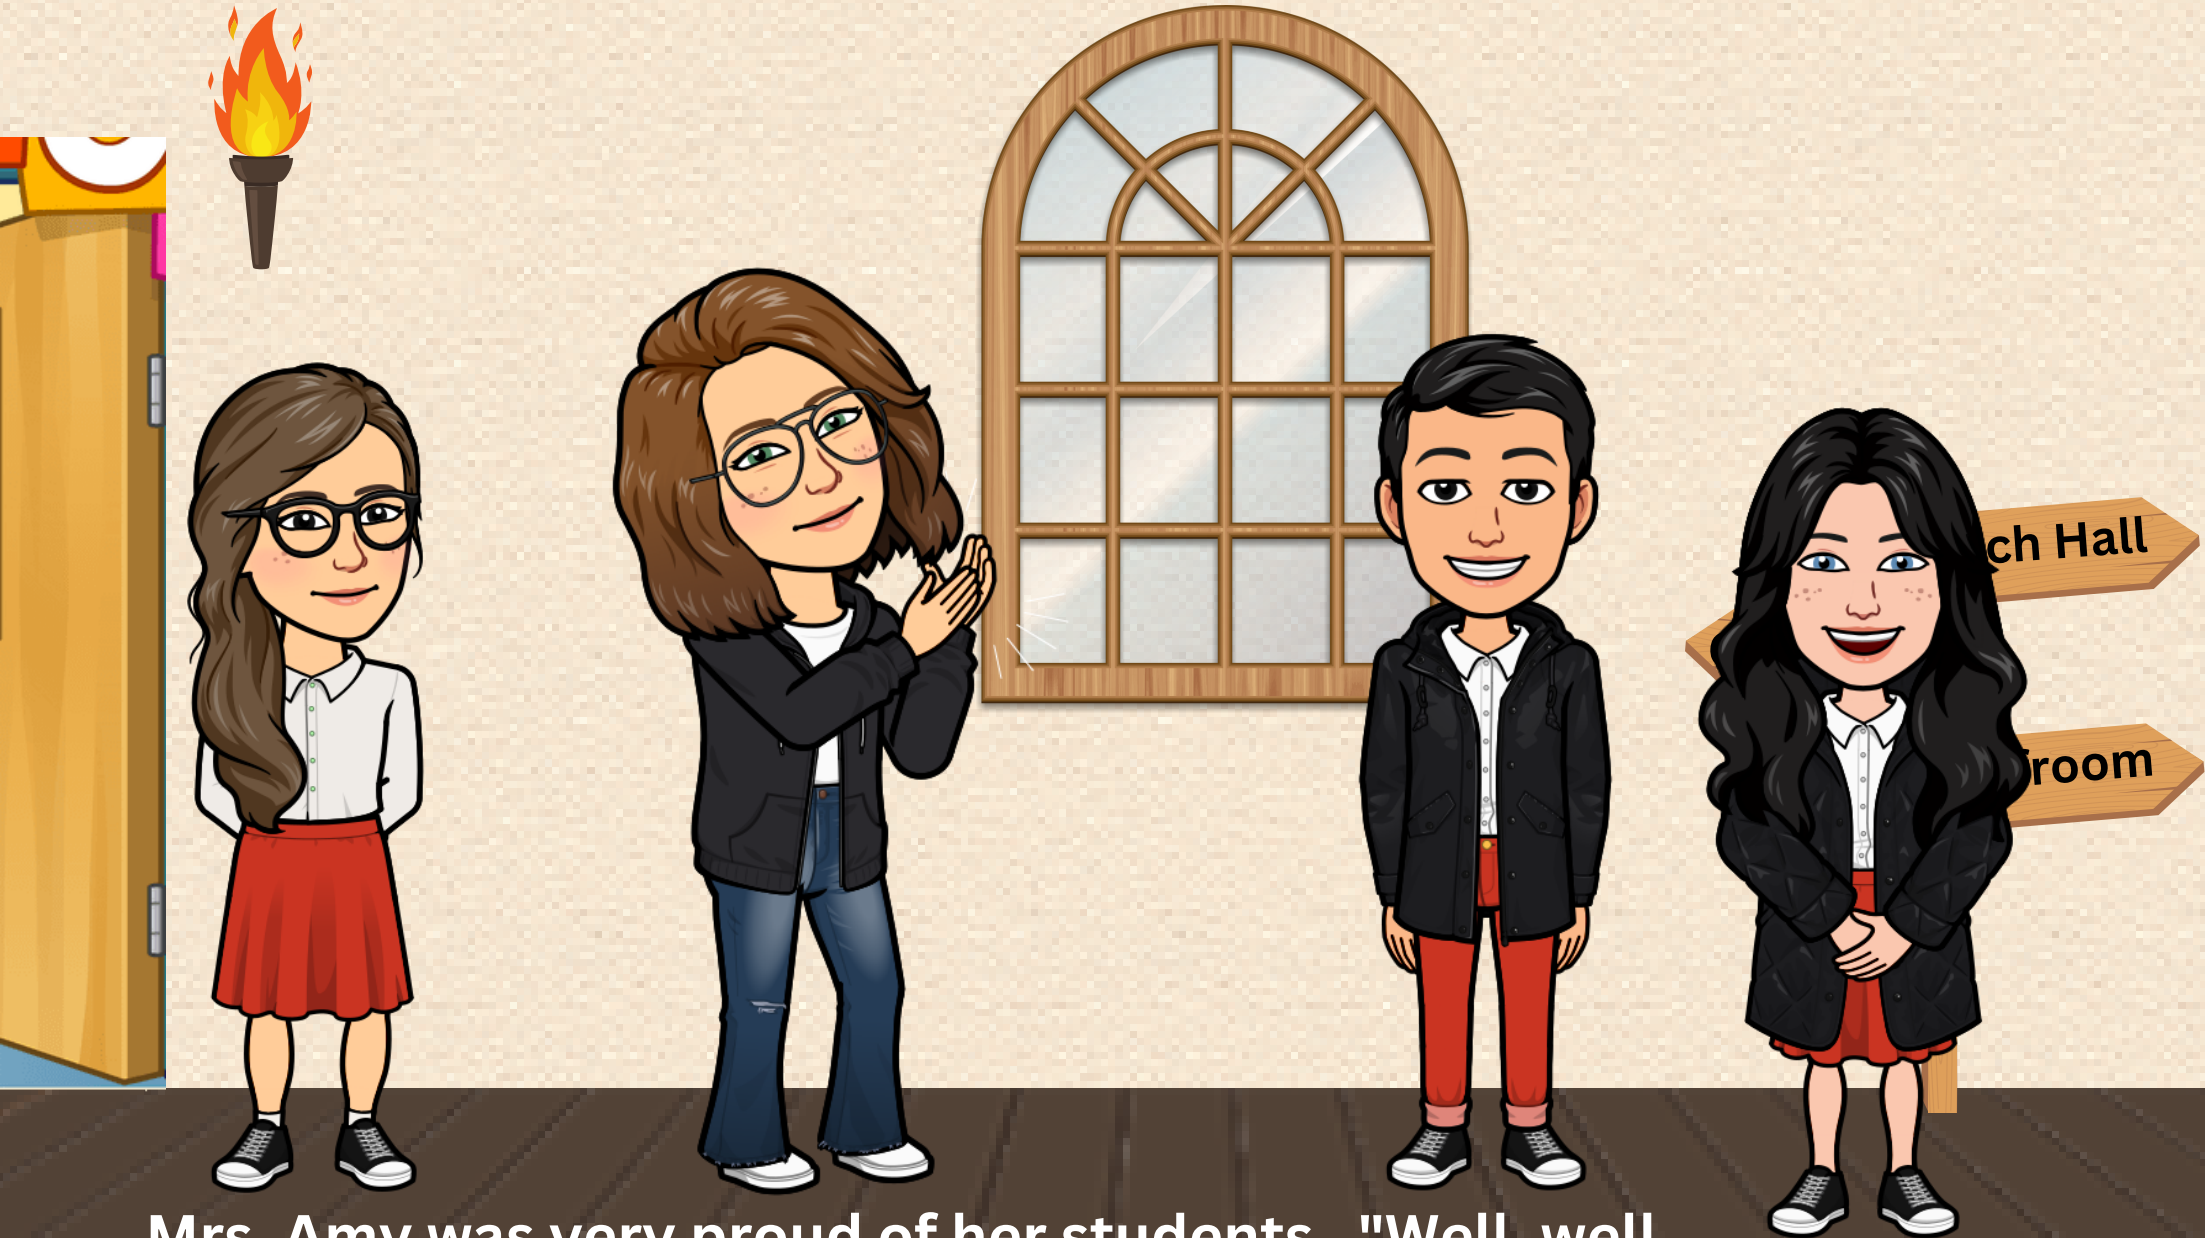

She led the way and got them all out of the portal.
"I don't want to have to live like that.",
cried Edmund
"And that's why we must grow more trees", said Lavender.

"We must do our best to make sure we don't have to see that ever again." suggested Mirabelle

The students returned back to their class and pledged to do everything they could to protect their planet.

Mrs. Amy was very proud of her students. "Well, well, you've learned enough for now, go on and have your break." she said
